RULE OF THIRDS

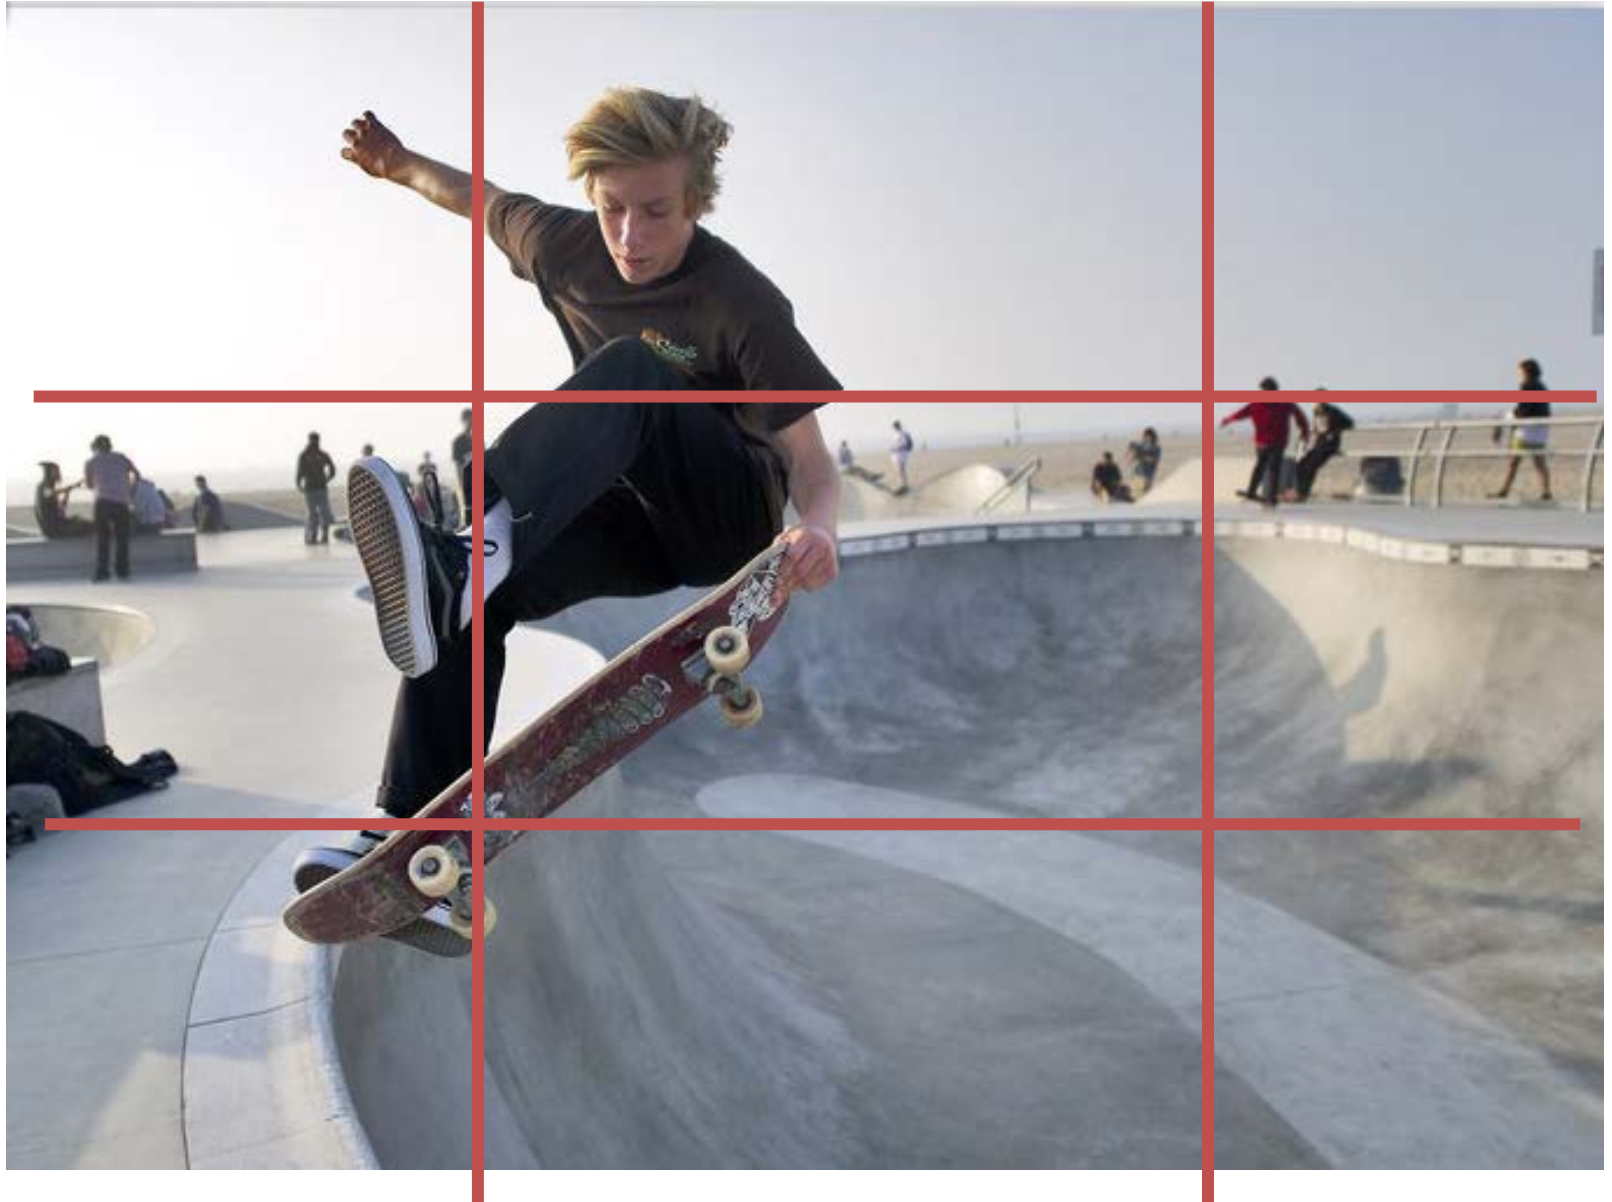

Remember the tic-tac-toe board –
the center of interest should be where the lines intersect.

Rule of Thirds

PERSPECTIVE

No Head-On Collisions

Don't stand right in front of someone when taking their picture – get up (bird's view) or down (worm's view), go to the left or the right.

5 THINGS TO TRY

Get close

Pay attention to backgrounds

Get vertical

Be there before, during & after

Practice, practice, practice

get close
then get closer
then get closer

ZOOM

Every photographer has a zoom –
in fact you have two! Use them!

GET CLOSE

Pay attention to BACKGROUNDS

Generally speaking, “clean” backgrounds look best. If necessary, change your position so that people don’t have poles growing out of their heads

GO VERTICAL

Orient your camera vertically for a different look.

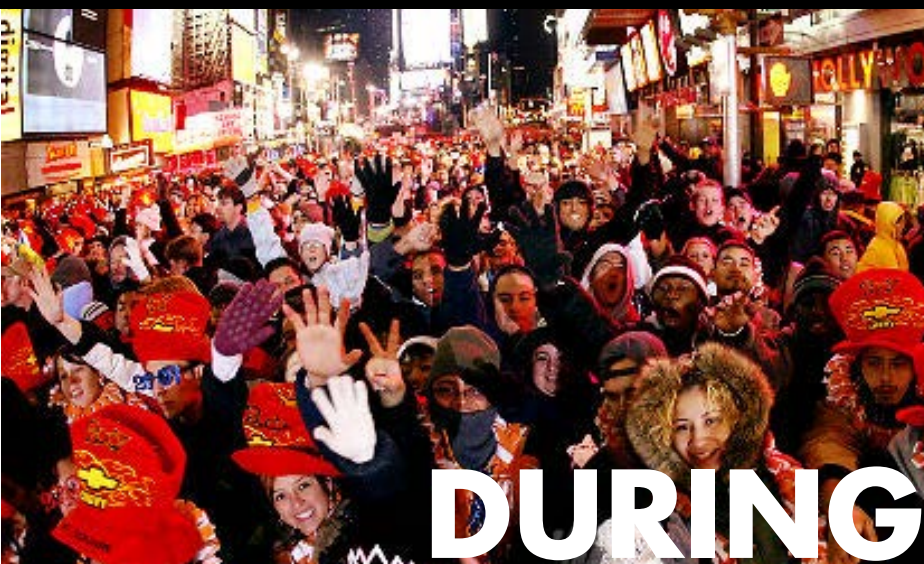

BEFORE

DURING

get there early and stay late

DURING

AFTER

GET THERE EARLY

2012 NSPA Photo of the Year – Environmental Portrait, Honorable Mention
Chris Bull, Westlake HS, Austin, Texas

STAY LATE

2012 NSPA Photo of the Year – Sports Reaction, Finalist
Shelby Tauber, McKinney HS, McKinney, Texas

Practice, practice, practice!

The most skilled professional photographers, who have the best equipment in the world, take THOUSANDS of pictures to get one image that is considered good enough to print.

BY THE NUMBERS

2008 Beijing Summer Olympics

10 Sports Illustrated Photographers

300,000+ images shot

Staff kept 17,000

Editors took that down to 1046 'super selects'

Director of photography selected 135 images.

That's 0.045% of what they shot.
